WHY WE WANT YOUR OPINIONS AND IDEAS

The NHS provides 12 mental health services across England specifically for veterans. They enable specialist staff to care for veterans with mental health needs, direct them to the most appropriate service and give them effective treatment.

The services started in 2010 after publication of Fighting Fit: a mental health plan for servicemen and veterans, a report by former Surgeon-Commander, Dr Andrew Murrison MP. Most of the contracts for these services are due to end in September 2016. So this gives us an opportunity to ask you what you think of them.

What you say will help us build on the strengths of our current mental health services for veterans and develop our future services.

We want our services to be easily accessible to veterans, to take account of their experiences, and to give them high-quality and sensitive care, treatment and support – regardless of when they leave the armed forces.

So the NHS wants to hear from anyone who has opinions to offer, and particularly from:

- people who have served in the armed forces (whether as a reservist or regular) and have used or are currently using NHS veterans’ mental health services
- family members and carers
- staff and organisations that are providing mental health care, treatment and support for veterans and their families.

We really value your input and encourage you to give us your thoughts and experiences by filling in the questionnaire.

Thank you

Kate Davies
Head of Health and Justice, Armed Forces and their Families and Public Health Commissioning

It is estimated that about 6.1 million ex-service personnel live in the UK, including spouses, widows and children. Of these, around 2.8 million are veterans.

WHY WE SHOULD FOCUS ON VETERANS’ MENTAL HEALTH

The rate of mental health problems among serving personnel and recent veterans seems to be broadly similar to that of the general UK population. However, working-age veterans are more likely to report depression. Some also suffer anxiety and post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), which may involve alcohol or drug misuse.

Some people experience problems when they transfer from serving in the armed forces to civilian life. Other people who may have an increased risk of mental health difficulties include reservists, combat troops, those who have had problems in their childhood, and those who have left the services early (leaving before completing four years of service).

There is growing evidence that a range of mental health conditions may appear many years after veterans leave the services. These conditions may relate to their military experiences.

Some veterans are reluctant to seek help or talk about their problems, which means they don’t always access care, support and treatment. We would like to find out more about the reasons for this. Others may face difficulty getting the right help because, for example, they don’t:

- think civilians understand military culture
- know about the options for help and the services available through armed forces’ charities, the NHS or local authorities
- want to admit to what they regard as ‘weakness’ or their need for support.

Veterans aged 16 to 54 are more likely to experience common mental health problems, such as depression and anxiety, than comparable age groups in the general population.

Veterans who have experienced combat are more likely to experience PTSD and there is growing evidence that some cases of PTSD occur years after they have left the services.

WHO DO WE WANT TO HEAR FROM?
We welcome views from anyone who has opinions to offer on NHS veterans’ mental health services. In particular, we want to hear from:

- people who have served in the armed forces (whether as a reservist or regular) and have used or are currently using NHS veterans’ mental health services
- family members and carers
- staff and organisations that are providing mental health care, treatment and support for veterans and their families.

We would also like to hear from veterans with a mental health condition or mental health difficulties who have not sought or received support and treatment.

WHAT DO WE WANT TO HEAR ABOUT?
We want to hear about your views and experiences of NHS veterans’ mental health services. We also want to find out more about why some veterans with mental health difficulties have not sought treatment.

WHAT PERIOD OF TIME ARE WE ASKING ABOUT?
Most of our questionnaire is about NHS veterans’ mental health services from August 2010 to the present day. However, if you would like to give feedback on your experience of NHS mental health services for veterans before August 2010, we would find that really helpful too.

WHAT DO WE WANT YOU TO DO?
We want you to share your views and experiences by filling in the questionnaire. This will help to develop NHS services which will support veterans to overcome mental health difficulties.

WHAT IS THE TIMETABLE?
We are running this engagement from 25 January 2016 until 31 March 2016.

WHAT NHS SERVICES DOES THIS INVOLVE?
The questionnaire is about the mental health services provided by the NHS for veterans in England only.

After publication of Fighting Fit – a mental health plan for servicemen and veterans, the NHS created 12 dedicated services across England to increase its provision of specialist medical staff to care for veterans with mental health needs.

We are particularly keen to hear your views about these services which provide a range of support services for veterans, from assessment of the difficulties people are experiencing, to recommending support or treatment which can help veterans.

ABOUT THIS QUESTIONNAIRE

- We would really value your opinions and experiences of NHS mental health services for veterans. What you tell us will help the NHS in its planning and buying (also known as ‘commissioning’) of mental health services that best meet veterans’ needs.

- Most of the questions are about NHS veterans’ mental health services from August 2010 to the present day. This is because we would like your views on the 12 dedicated services we set up in 2010, after publication of the report Fighting Fit: a mental health plan for servicemen and veterans. The report identified where we needed to give extra support to veterans. The 12 services are listed on the previous page.

- If you would like to give feedback on your experience of NHS mental health services for veterans before August 2010, we would find that really helpful too. To do this, please complete the ‘About you’ section on pages 3 and 4 of the questionnaire, then go to the text box in Section 6 on page 23.

- This questionnaire covers NHS veterans’ mental health services in England only.

- Please pull out this questionnaire and start at the ‘About you’ section. The questionnaire looks long, but this is because we are gathering opinions from different groups of people. You will only need to answer the sections relevant to you, so it should only take you about 10 minutes to complete.

- Your answers will be really useful to us, and we value your time.

ALL COMMENTS AND FEEDBACK MUST BE RECEIVED BY 5PM ON 31 MARCH 2016

ABOUT THE WORDS ‘VETERAN’ AND ‘RESERVIST’

- We use ‘veteran’ to mean anyone who has been a serving member of the British armed forces for a day or more. It means the same as ‘ex-service personnel’. For consistency, we use only ‘veteran’ in the questionnaire.

- For the purposes of the questionnaire, when we say ‘veteran’ or when we talk about armed forces’ experiences, this includes reservists as well as regulars.

CONFIDENTIALITY

All responses will be analysed by an NHS organisation called NEL Commissioning Support Unit, and will be handled in the strictest confidence.

- Responses from individuals will be made available to NHS England, but your name and any identifiable data will be removed. You don’t have to give your name if you don’t want to; we will still welcome your opinions. No individual names or identifiable data will be shared or presented in any report. We may use quotations from responses in our final report about the engagement, but we will anonymise them.

- Responses made on behalf of an organisation will be made available to NHS England. They may also be made available to the public. Responses made on behalf of an organisation should not include any confidential or sensitive data.

- The responses provided will be used to create a report which summarises people’s views and experiences of NHS veterans’ mental health services.

When you have completed your sections of the questionnaire, please post the whole questionnaire back to us. You should find a pre-printed envelope inside every paper copy of this document. If not, you can write Freepost VETERANS’ MENTAL HEALTH on the front of an envelope and post it for free.

The NHS is asking people about their views and experiences of existing NHS veterans’ mental health services by involving veterans and their families, NHS clinicians and staff, clinical commissioning groups (CCGs), charities, voluntary organisations, patient groups and other key groups.

NHS England.

We are doing this to help us develop future mental health services for veterans. We want these services to be accessible, to take account of veterans’ experiences, and to give high-quality and sensitive care, treatment and support, regardless of when people leave the armed forces.

We want to give people who have used NHS veterans’ mental health services an opportunity to tell us what is good, and what could be improved, about the care and treatment they have received.

We would also like to hear the thoughts and experiences of people and organisations who provide these services.

The NHS is not reducing funding for veterans’ mental health services.

Your views will help to ensure that future NHS veterans’ mental health services build on the strengths of current services and give veterans good access to care, treatment and support that are right for the individual.
HOW WILL THIS AFFECT STAFF WORKING IN OUR CURRENT SERVICES?

We will identify any potential impact on staff as part of the future commissioning process. We will keep staff informed throughout this process.

WHEN WILL THE NEW SERVICES BE LAUNCHED?

We hope to launch the new services by autumn 2016.
